Summary from the First District: “The trial court’s R.C. 2929.14(C)(4) findings that consecutive prison terms were necessary to protect the public from future crime by the defendant and were not disproportionate to the seriousness of the defendant’s conduct were sufficiently supported by the record, which showed that the defendant was out on bond when he committed four robberies and a felonious assault, his conduct demonstrated an escalating path of violence, he had a long record of juvenile adjudications, and he had a plethora of infractions while housed in the justice center. Because the sentencing entries do not reflect the sentences the trial court actually imposed upon the defendant at the sentencing hearing, the causes are remanded for the trial court to correct the defect by nunc pro tunc entries.”

From the opinion: “Defendant-Appellant Jay H. Houston appeals the decision of the Noble County Court finding him guilty of failure to control in violation of R.C. 4511.202. Appellant contests the sufficiency and the weight of the evidence. He also contends the trial court erred in finding a deer running into the road is foreseeable and thus cannot constitute a sudden emergency for purposes of an affirmative defense. This court concludes a deer may constitute a sudden emergency; therefore, the trial court erred in ruling, as a matter of law, that a deer in the road cannot be a sudden emergency. As such, the judgment is reversed, and the case is remanded for further proceedings.”
